THE FIQH OF THE SALAH TIMETABLE OF AL-MASJID AL-AQSA, BLACKBURN

Fajr Salah

- (1) The beginning of Fajr Salah time is known as Subh Sadiq (true dawn). This occurs when the sun reaches 18 degrees below the horizon. This is in accordance with the view and practice of the vast majority of the expert scholars and Muftis of the Indian subcontinent as well as the UK.
- (2) During some of the summer months in the UK, the sun does not reach 18 degrees below the horizon, hence why it does not become fully dark. For these days, the Subh Sadiq time is set at Nisf al-Layl (half the night), when the sun starts to ascend.

Isha Salah

- (1) The time for Isha Salah begins when the Shafaq (twilight) disappears. There are two types of Shafaq: Ahmar (red) and Abyad (white). Shafaq Ahmar disappears when the sun reaches 15 degrees below the horizon and Shafaq Abyad disappears thereafter when the sun reaches 18 degrees. This is in accordance with the view of the vast majority of the expert scholars and Muftis of the Indian subcontinent as well as the UK.
- (2) The Isha Salah beginning times in this timetable are based on the disappearance of Shafaq Ahmar at 15 degrees throughout the year. There is no deviance from this in March, April or May, nor in July, August or September because the Salah times are fixed in Shariah.
- (3) During some days in May and also July-August, the Isha Salah beginning times occur after 11.20pm. During these days, the Isha Jamat times have been set towards the end of the time and Fajr Jamat times at the beginning time, so that Musallis can perform Isha Salah, Tahajjud Salah and Fajr Salah in one visit to the Masjid.
- (4) During some of the summer months, the sun does not reach 15 degrees below the horizon. This means that technically Isha Salah time does not occur, because the Shafaq does not disappear. This is why the Isha beginning times are blank in this timetable. However, Isha Salah remains obligatory and must be performed between Maghrib and Fajr Salah. During these days, Isha Salah Jamat has been set for 30 minutes after sunset so that there is a gap between the two Salah and so that attendees can benefit from spiritual discourses in between.
